Little grains of sand,
Make the mightiest ocean
And the pleasant land.

David Crisp Grie or David's pet peeves - walking to school; the other is arriving there. But his weakness is getting his homework done. He cherishes the memory of passing Grade 10 History. He wants to work with computers, but he'll probably end up as a farm hand on M.M.'s farm.

Cathy Croxford Oh, if the world were but to re-create
That we might soon close the Book of Fate.
And make The Writer on a fairer leaf
Inscribe our names, as quite old-timers!

Robert Dean Natural child
Got to believe in something
Got to believe in one thing;
Natural child
The human race.

Cathy DeBree A little while with grief and laughter
And then the day will close.
The shadows gather... what comes after
No man knows?

Gordon Munter You can be,

What you want to be
But for most of us,
That isn't much.

Jim Murchison The turtle lives twist piled desks which practically control his life. I often wonder how the turtle in such a fix can be so serene. He's a real optimist

George Nettleton

Debbie Newman Sunshine on my walk. To keep me mind on the things I'm saying. Four steps in the hall. To tell me I've been this way before nevermore.

Mark Newman

Tim Osborne

Cindy Patchel We must become new men, or be satisfied as we are.
Either way we risk tragedy!

Cathy Parent You can't stay happy by doing what you like.
Only by learning to like what you do.
